The theme was Dr. E.K. Janaki Ammal: The mother of modern Botany in India, a biographical journey.

A poster regarding this contest was published in our college group on 25th June to share the information to all the departments. A Google form supplied for the collection the details of all participants. Fifty-seven (57) students enrolled for competition and out of which 47 students finally attended the MCQ.

Criteria of the competition was to finish the multiple-choice questions (MCQ) within 15 minutes. The first three positions declared based on maximum marks obtained on minimum time span. There were three merit certificates and another three consolation certificates presented to the winners.

10. Outcome of the event/Evaluation by Program Coordinator: The contest was successful with the participation of good number of students. Dr. Janaki Ammal was a premier Indian scientist (perhaps, the first woman scientist in India) and the auto biography of such an eminent person became familiar to the participants of this programme, especially, to those students from biological background. The participated students might have been read the theme and attended the MCQ successfully.
